

MANY MEXICAN RAIDERS KILLED

Sheriff and Rangers Give Battle to Mexican Bandits With Fatal Results.

Corpus Christi, Tex., March 9.—Five of thirty Mexican bandits who raided the Tom East ranch, south of Hebronville, Thursday night have been killed by posse headed by Texas rangers, and thirteen others of the band have been located and will be "accounted for before daylight," according to a message received here late last night from Hebronville. None of the possemen were injured.

Two of the bandits were killed in the brush during the day, the message said, and three others were shot last night when rangers encountered sixteen of the Mexicans five miles southwest of Hebronville while they were making a dash for the Rio Grande.

Further reports from the East ranch indicate the raiders were "Texas Mexicans," as they spoke English and appeared familiar with the ranch surroundings. Yesterday's report that Sheriff Thompson was at the ranch at the time of the raid is denied.

W. L. Franklin, foreman of the ranch, with his family, was eating his evening meal when the Mexicans rode up and said they wanted to purchase groceries from the ranch store. The foreman's son went to the store with the Mexicans. In the meantime Claude McGill and Steve Franklin came up in Sheriff Thompson's automobile and were stopped by another party of bandits. The Mexicans then took charge of the ranch, looted the store, stole several saddles, commandeered the Thompson automobile and started in the direction of Hebronville. Two Mexican cowboys were forced to go with the bandits in the automobile.

According to the cowboys, the bandits told them they were going to raid Hebronville, but abandoned that plan when they were within four miles of the town, and instead left the automobile and cowboys and disappeared in the brush.

News of the raid reached Hebronville at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Capt. Wright and a company of rangers stationed there immediately took up the trail and later were joined by other officers.

WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPION

Ted Lewis, Crashing, Smashing, Flashing Fighter, Who Meets Kid Paris at Union Club Arena Tonight.

Ted Lewis, welter champion, who faces Kid Paris, the local pug aspirant, tonight at the Union Athletic club, slept through Saturday morning, and in due championship fashion, sent his manager, a brisk little New Yorker, round to the newspaper offices. It is much easier, even for pug, to have some one laud their merits than to even stand blushing by and hear their ability extolled.

Be that as it may, whether it was modesty or ennu that kept Lewis in his downy couch, his representative had full vocal swing, and there is no doubt that Lewis is all that everybody has ever claimed he is.

Ted, it will be remembered (by looking it up in the sport manual), accomplished his first championship honors at the tender age of 17, when he was pronounced featherweight ruler of England, kayoing one Alex Lambert, and whereupon he was awarded the Lord Londondale girth strap and saluted to victory, defeating the Frenchman, Paul Till, in a twelve-round mill the same year.

From that point on Lewis has had his victories and his defeats, but with the strong accent on the winged statue, cashing in on his title and showing his "fighting heart," he is now taking all comers in a statewide tour, and so the rough and ready little champion of Chickamauga is given a look-in.

Lewis pulls down the "officially inspected" to the 143-pound indicator. Paris has it over him here, and will probably weigh in at 155. Both boys are the same height—5 feet 8 inches—but Ted has a slightly longer reach, making his octave 75 inches.

Everybody knows the champion's reputation as a scientific boxer, with a neat little jab that is most effective, and, judging from Paris' ability as demonstrated in the local arena, providing he does not get the Jim Harper stage fright, the mill should be interesting.

The remainder of the card for tonight's pugmill feat includes a battle royal, a grind between Frank Wallace and Kid Henry and a clash between Joe Harrington and Soldier Mitchell. Earl Wester is going to do the Yackahoola and get in people's way who want to see the fight, but a referee is a necessary evil, and Earl gets by nicely.

The machine can be operated from a distance, Lombard declares. It could be placed in a front trench and operated from a point at the rear. It can be regulated to shoot in any direction, and is easily carried by three or four men. Steam is the source of energy.

Lombard smiled as he explained that he found his fundamental principle in the story of David and Goliath. The sling which proved so formidable in the hands of the little man furnished the inspiration on which he worked.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS ARE NOT WANTED IN TRENCHES

Gridiron Heroes Show Less Than One-Third of Endurance of Other Men.

London, Jan. 29.—(Correspondence Associated Press).—American college athletes will find something to think about in this: A prominent Glasgow medical man who has just returned from a professional visit to the front in France says that professional football players are not wanted in the trenches, and explains that this is so because their endurance is less than one-third of that of the ordinary soldier taken from the desk or the farm or the shop. He attributes this to the fact that they have been so long "tuned" to the highest pitch to take part in the game. In addition, their nerves are so acute that they cannot stand gunfire as can the ordinary man. The doctor says "it is like linking up a race horse with an artillery team."

BILL KILLIFER COMES IN OFF HOLDOUT LIST

Chicago, March 9.—Bill Killifer, who was purchased from Philadelphia with Grover Alexander, last night signed his contract with the Chicago Nationals, according to a telegram to Manager Mitchell from Killifer, who is spending the winter at Los Angeles. Killifer had been a holdout. The terms of the contract were not announced.

Mitchell also received word that Leslie Mann, of Lincoln, Neb., who left the team last year to take up Y. M. C. A. athletic work at army camps, had been granted his discharge and would join the team at Pasadena, Cal. Mitchell had signed and that Alexander and one or two others now are the only unsigned players on the team.

BAYLOR COPS CHAMPIONSHIP OF LOCAL SCHOOL LEAGUE

Although Central High school's basketball team showed splendid team work and an abundance of speed, the players were no match for the hefty quintet of Baylor school and went down in defeat Friday night to the tune of 45 to 16. Baylor's victory gives the Red and Gray the championship of the prep school basketball league.

Crippled by the absence of Cornelison, center, and Cherry, guard, McCullie lost to Chattanooga High school's team.

On next Wednesday night Baylor will play Central Y. M. C. A. for the championship. The games of Friday night may close the prep basketball season.

HOW THE GIANT CONTENDERS STACK UP IN SIZE AND KAYOS

(By Paul Purman.)

(The last of three articles in which Purman discusses Jack Dempsey and Fred Fulton, chief contenders for Jess Willard's crown.)

The world may see a new heavyweight champion this summer. Since Jess Willard won the title from Jack Johnson in Havana in 1915 there has been no insistent demand for him to defend his title, as it was generally agreed in the sporting world that there was no heavyweight who could give him even an interesting battle.

Nineteen-eighteen has brought about a different condition. On the heavy-weight horizon there are two great aspirants for Willard's title who have proved their mettle by long strings of victories. They are Jack Dempsey and Fred Fulton.

The public will demand that Willard meet one of these men. The only fair way to decide which one, is to match the two for a twenty-round fight in some city where bouts of this length are permitted.

In two previous stories we have studied the two men. Now let's see how they compare.

Physically, everything favors Fulton, a giant in height, weight and reach. Dempsey must give away at least twenty-five pounds when he meets Fulton. What is even more serious, he must give away more than four inches in reach.

Their fighting styles are entirely different. Fulton is a careful, deliberate fighter, who methodically spars for an opening and then shoots over a powerful blow with lightning speed and perfect accuracy.

Dempsey is a rushing, tearing fighter. He is always aggressive. He is a quick hitter and his blows carry terrific force.

Both are good ring generals. Fulton in a rather deliberate way, while Dempsey thinks and acts quickly.

The records of the two men seem to indicate that Dempsey has the greatest fighting heart of the two. An instance of this is shown in their most recent bouts with Carl Morris, the champion fowler of the fight game.

When Dempsey fought Morris at Buffalo a few weeks ago, Morris started his usual illegal tactics. Did Dempsey claim foul? He did not. He lugged of the referee continually not to interfere.

"If any one's going to stop this bird, I'll stop him," he told the referee at the end of the fourth round. In the fifth Morris' seconds threw in a towel.

The last time Fulton fought Morris he kept so busy calling Mat Hinkle's attention to Morris' fouls that he did very little fighting himself.

Dempsey fights primarily because he likes to fight—Fulton probably for some other reason.

The recent records of both men coincide in some particulars. Since 1914 Dempsey has had 39 fights of which he won 23 by knockouts, 10 of which came in his first round. In the same time Fulton had 28 fights with 19 knockouts. There were one-round knockouts.

Dempsey has twice won from Carl Morris. Fulton won from Morris on a foul in their most recent encounter. Dempsey outclassed Gunboat Smith in four rounds. Fulton knocked out the Gunner in seven rounds.

Between them they have pushed every heavyweight of importance to one side and stand together as logical opponents for Willard.

HOSIERY MILLS COMPANY ISSUES "ARROWHEAD"

A Monthly Periodical Published in Interest of Chattanooga's Great Industry.

The Arrowhead is the title of a 24-page monthly periodical issued by the employees of the Richmond Hosiery mills at Rossville, Ga. J. A. Crumley is editor.

The Arrowhead is printed on heavy, smooth-surfaced paper, and is of neat typography, its face being just the size to be pleasing and attractive to the eye. This is the third number of the publication.

On the first page appears a half-tone photo of Edward Gould Richmond, who was president of the company from the time it started in 1896 until his death in November, 1903.

Several columns are devoted to urging the campaign now on for the sale of thrift stamps, many employees of the mills having invested in this manner to help Uncle Sam win the war.

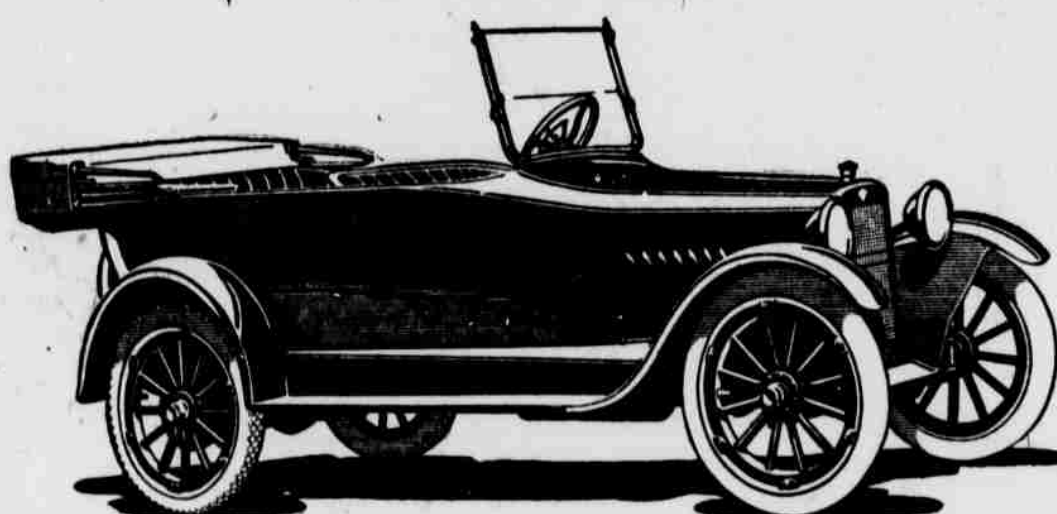

Local features, covering the doings of employees, are well taken care of by correspondents, there being communications from several mills owned and operated by the company.

Continental Motor

Timken Axles

Timken Bearings

Stromberg Carburetor

Remy Ignition

Wagner Starting and Lighting

Fedders Radiator

Spiral Bevel Gear

Semi-Floating Axle

Exide Storage Battery

Warner Steering Gear

Are Also Features of 40 Cars at $1150 to $10,000

These are the bare facts of the matter. And they speak volumes.

There is an actual difference in price, between Saxon "Six" at $935 and these 40 costly cars, of from $215 to $9,065. Yet we find that in 11 important points these cars duplicate Saxon "Six."

For instance, one of these cars, priced at $3,000, has 6 of these 11 big features that Saxon "Six" also possesses. Think of that—a difference of $2,065 in price and yet duplication in 6 important points.

Which is the better VALUE?

Here is another example. One out of this list of 40, priced at $4,800, has 5 of the 11 features cited above.

Just hold this thought a moment. Saxon "Six" costs $935. This car mentioned costs $4,800—$3,865 more than Saxon "Six." Yet it duplicates Saxon "Six" in 5 big features.

In other words, Saxon "Six" is a quality car. Yet it sells for $335—or $215 less than the lowest priced of these 40 costly cars.

Any talk about paying $200 '300 more and getting a better car is simply talk.

The facts of the matter won't substantiate any such statement.

When you come down to direct comparisons in features, performance or appearance, there is only one big value car in that price-class ranging from $800 to $1,150.

And that car is Saxon "Six" at $935. So take Saxon "Six" and pocket that $200 or $300 saving.

And you will have bought the best value. There's real satisfaction in knowing that.
